From projects to public policies: evidence based policy making

Caterina Brancaleoni - Emilia Romagna Regional Government

Seville 27 September 2017

Evaluation and policy making

Well structured evaluation processes support policy making:

- To define new policies or adjusting exisiting ones
- To make more effective public policies in the long term
- To provide guidance for implementation of policies

- ESI funds and ETC call, in the 14-20 planning period, for a new generation of evaluation and assessement activities based on the measurement of effects given by public policies for development and cohesion

Complexity of Panoramed

Large cooperation area of MED:9 MS+3 IPA Countries, 56 Regions

Panoramed: 12 Country Coordinators+ WP leaders

Associated partners (Interact, Eusair,West Med Initiative, others…)

EUSAIR macro regional strategy

Why a WP on methodologies and evaluation?

- To what extent strategic projects can contribute to a more effective cooperation in the MED area by promoting joint actions and policy exchanges between national and regional actors
- Provide tools supporting the strategic implementation of MED, going beyond the single project
- Support capitalisation of project results and best practices

Why a WP on methodologies and evaluation?

- Take advantage from a methodology experienced in ER developed together with ERVET to assess the impact of ECT projects and mainstreaming
- Draw lessons for the post 2020 Cohesion policy and ETC
